Clinical & Professional Experience

Steven graduated in Physiotherapy at Manchester Metropolitan University. Since then, he has gained experience in paediatrics, neurological rehabilitation, major trauma and complex musculoskeletal disorders at various NHS departments.

Steven is keen to provide a specialist service to clients who present with complex trauma and persistent pain through the use of multiple intervention and treatment techniques. He uses his background in personal training with his physiotherapy skills to aid in exercise-based rehabilitation. Steven uses the biopsychosocial model of treatment to holistically treat the client and appropriately manage pain.

Steven has been working in the personal injury sector, treating and case managing a variety of caseloads, since 2017. He has managed clients with a wide variety of injuries, such as peripheral nerve injuries, fractures and polytrauma, fibromyalgia, and head injuries.
